KindChat

Free to use, for iPhone and Android

ENCRYPTED. AND KIND.

Everything you like about chatting. Built to keep the nastiness out.

Message, call and share moments as usual, with built-in protection that recognises many scams, insults and harassment and holds them back. The same protection for everyone.

For your parents

"Hi Mum, this is my new number, I urgently need money." KindChat recognises many scams like this and holds them back before they arrive.

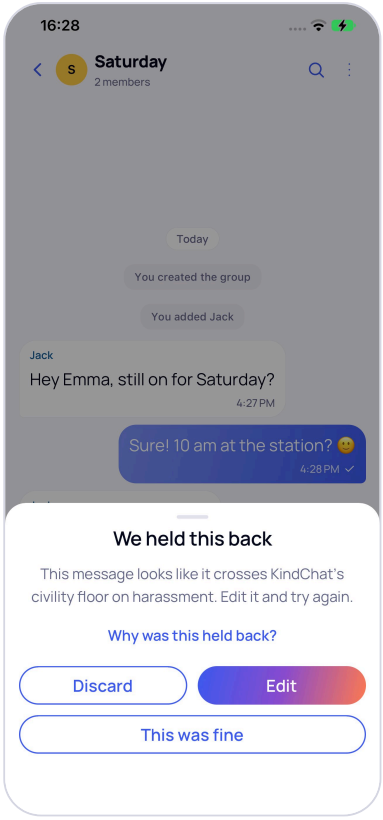

For your children

Insults and bullying the app recognises are held back. For many grooming attempts it shows a hint card. Without you reading their chats.

For yourself

Groups with the right tone. Recognised nude images are held back.

No filter is perfect. You can show anyway, report, block. The person you report is not told who reported them.

This is what it looks like when KindChat holds a message back: calmly explained, without exposing or shaming anyone.

Encryption protects the message. KindChat also looks out for the people.

1

Before sending

Your phone checks before encrypting; if unsure (and in some languages, for most messages), so does our own EU server: without your identity, stored only with your consent.

2

In transit

End-to-end encrypted with the Signal Protocol: chats, groups, photos, videos and documents (from 1.1.14). Only the phones in the chat hold the key.

3

On receipt

The recipient's phone checks once more. So the protection still applies when the sender runs a modified app.

Checked on sending and on arrival: texts, photos, videos, documents (from 1.1.14); not calls or the sound of videos.

Exceptions: messages to KindChat Support are read by our server. A report hands over the reported message. Display names, group names, group pictures and reactions are not yet end-to-end encrypted.

Held back when recognised: insults and bullying, hate and incitement, threats, scams, sexual harassment, nude images, grooming (or a hint card).

Stays allowed: Opinions and disagreement on the issues, humour and irony, difficult topics such as politics, religion and health, affection.

WHEN IT MATTERS

ON THE SENDER'S SIDE

When someone is struggling

If someone writes that they want to harm themselves, the app pauses before sending. No blame, just help: for example Samaritans, 116 123.

ON THE RECIPIENT'S SIDE

When a chat feels off

If the app spots signs of grooming, such as pushing for secrecy, it can show a calm help card below the message, with your country's child helpline, such as Childline (UK 0800 1111, Ireland 1800 66 66 66). The other person is not told.
